

BAKER HAS NEW VIEWS ON THE WAR

SECRETARY OF WAR IS OPTIMISTIC AND SEES GREAT GAINS BY ALLIES IN DRIVE ON WEST FRONT.

MAY EXPECT NEW MOVE

Italian Retreat Not Fully Understood As Yet—Losses to Italian Army, However, Cripple Their Cause.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Oct. 29.—Important developments are impending in the great war. Secretary Baker indicates in his official review of operations on all fronts, which concludes with the brief statement that certain units of the American army in France have taken their places on the front to complete their training. This is the first official mention of the fact that General Pershing's men are on the firing line.

It is the ways of activity during the week on nearly every front, however, that caught the secretary's attention. Operations are in progress both east and west on the Italian front, in Macedonia, Rumania, Mesopotamia and even in East Africa. On the western front, the secretary's review indicates that the German forces appear to be the next move expected and they must move fast under critical circumstances from between the two wedges, which have been driven relentlessly into their lines by the British and French.

It is passing through a difficult moment, Mr. Baker says, the Austro-German drive is being pressed forward by imposing forces, but once he has stemmed the tide of an Austro-German rush, the British and French will be able to turn the tide and hurl the enemy back with only a taste of victory, during the first day or so of this terrible onslaught. Winter is now coming, the secretary says, and the secretary's review follows.

"Renewed activity prevails in all theaters of the war. Important developments would appear to be impending along the western front, and significant operations are in progress.

"The two outstanding features of the situation of the week are the renewed British offensive in the Ypres salient, resulting in substantial gain of territory of important value, and the sudden well aimed and sustained thrust of the French north of the Aisne.

"It is evident that the drive along the western front is broadening in scope and intensity. The whole front from the Houtholts wood, through the Passchendaele, to the Aisne, is becoming the scene of increasing allied pressure which the enemy is withstanding with difficulty. Side by side the French and British are pushing forward through the Flemish lowlands towards Roulers.

"The enemy, believing he might find a rift in the otherwise impregnable allied line, has been endeavoring to break the French-British forces directed repeated heavy counter-attacks in the segment. These were repulsed.

"That the British attack during the past week has been carried out with effectiveness is apparent. The British command is maneuvering in order to gain important practical advantages at a minimum cost appears to be the program carried out. The difficulties of the enemy are rising steadily. Slowly the allies are enlarging their gains in Flanders, driving into the heart of German resistance.

"The German armies fight on stubbornly. If any further evidence of allied superiority be needed it seems to be furnished by the successes won by the French during the week. The offensive was launched on a mile front near the west end of the Chemin-des-Dames at dawn on Oct. 23.

"General Petain so well masked his preparation that the enemy was taken by surprise at the exact terrain chosen for the attack and was overwhelmed before able to organize concentrated resistance. The German lines were penetrated to a depth of well over two miles at one point.

"This first attack was followed by a second attack in this sector crowned with success. In three days fighting the French had taken twelve thousand prisoners, 120 guns of large calibre, and a great quantity of booty. The possession of the captured fortress of Noyon, the key to the entire ridge and the villages beyond, now makes possible for the French to encircle the German positions along the Chemin-des-Dames, as well as to fire direct through the valley toward the fortress of Laon. General Petain showed his skill as a master of strategy in being able to obtain so decisive a victory in so brief a period.

"The time has apparently come for another strategic retreat of the enemy. It means the Germans must retreat to a new entrenchment and carefully prepared line if they intend to resist further in the west.

"It must be admitted that the German retreat, executed as a result of the battle of the Somme last year, was carried through with consummate skill, the retreating armies destroying all cover and taking up positions of marked tactical and strategic strength.

"But the battle of the Somme had by one wedge. Today we have the wedges of Flanders and that of the Aisne. The German army continues to be the enemy's best protection. He is relying on this factor to impede the drive and by shrouding the battle in such rain and fog give him a respite until he can prepare himself to meet a fresh onslaught.

Austrian Peace Plan Is Again Booming As Result of Victories

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Zurich, Oct. 29.—Austrian hopes of a "speedy and honorable peace" have been raised by the Austro-German successes on the Italian front, the president of the Reichsrath said in an address to the deputies as quoted in the Vienna dispatches. He admitted there had been great anxiety in regard to Trieste, which had been revoked. The report of the proceedings said that the German and Polish deputies arose and cheered the emperor and army, implying that the Czechs did not join in the demonstration.

London, Oct. 29.—La Metropole, a Belgian newspaper published here, says a German attempt to separate the allies has been defeated by Baron De Broqueville, Belgian foreign minister. According to this newspaper Germany recently made a peace offer to Belgium.

tor, which may result in the abandonment by the Italians of the Bainszoo plateau, which they won after so valiant a struggle a few weeks ago. Italy is passing through a difficult moment. We must remember, however, that in May, 1916, the Austrians attempted a similar onslaught. Then they had fine weather, a well-chosen terrain and above all their superior fighting vigor of the Austro-German line upon at that time. The Austrians had decided successes during the initial days of the fighting and pressed on to the edge of the Italian plain, only to be stopped and driven back.

"The vast German naval operations in the vicinity of the islands at the mouth of the Finnish gulf were not carried through with serious losses, both in men and material. The Russian resistance apparently is consolidating. The Germans, using the islands as a base, have now gained a foothold on the adjacent Finnish land. The first landing on the Werder peninsula at the northern end of the Gulf of Riga was successfully carried out. A further attempt at another point failed.

"It is not probable the Germans will undertake for the time being more than a strengthening of the positions now held in the Riga sector. The retirement of the advanced enemy lines to a depth of fifteen miles in the region of the Dvina is reported.

"Rumors of an important move by the Turks reinforced by certain Austro-German units under the command of General Falkenhayn, which have repeatedly been reported through the near East, have failed to materialize.

"The German army, our troops in France progresses steadily and favorably. Certain units have taken their places in the front line trenches under battle conditions."

MILK PRODUCERS TO SHOW TRANSACTIONS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Racine, Oct. 29.—The milk producers who have been cited into court with their books and papers to testify to any fact connected with the fixing of the price of milk for October, will be compelled to tell what they know of the transactions of the Milk Producers' association, according to a ruling to that effect handed down by Judge Belden of the circuit court. The court also ruled that the state could not proceed to secure the facts under section 4096, the discovery statute, but must confine itself to the second clause of section 614, the new anti-trust act passed by the last session of the legislature.

"The state is now prevented from continuing its examination of the producers under its present plan. The question came before Judge Belden as a result of the refusal of Frank T. Holt, president of the association, and three other producers, to testify at Kenosha last week. It will be necessary for the state to commence new proceedings against these men under the second clause of the anti-trust act.

INVESTIGATORS TO MEET ON THURSDAY

INVESTIGATORS OF THE MILK SITUATION IN THIS SECTION WILL GATHER HERE THURSDAY AFTER-NOON.

NOT TO SET A PRICE

Decision Made Will Be Used as Basis for the Setting of Milk Price to the Consumers.

Representatives of the consumers and the producers of milk in this section of the state will meet in this city on Thursday to discuss the present milk conditions and to give their efforts towards the formation of a definite answer to the question as to whether the present unsettled conditions will be remedied. The meeting will be held in the Mayor's office and will only be opened to the eleven members of the committee who will have charge of the investigation.

The committee has met on two previous occasions in Milwaukee in an effort to solve the problem but up to the present time they have been unable to reach any conclusion. Expert evidence has been presented. The committee by both the consumers and producers so that the meeting in this city will bend its efforts towards the searching of a definite price rather than to hear the strong points on either side of the case.

The committee to investigate the conditions was appointed by Governor Philipp to probe the situation and since the appointment was made a little over three weeks ago the men have been hard at work. Although the committee have not been vested with the power of setting the price which will be determined their evidence will be used as a standard when the price is made.

One of the meetings in Milwaukee was in the form of a public hearing at which all who wished to be heard were allowed to speak in this way much valuable and needed information was secured. Representatives of the large producers in this section took the opportunity of giving their side of the case. On the part of the consumers the Governor appointed prominent citizens to explain the attitude of the question up for discussion does not mean the setting of a price on milk for the entire state but for the territory covered by the Chicago Milk Producers' association. Janesville is vitally interested in this question and the fact that the hearing will be held here will tend to aid the local conditions to help in the securing of a speedy decision.

The meeting will be held Thursday afternoon if the present plans of Mayor Fathers are completed. It was expected that the meeting would start in the morning to give ample time to reach the decision but because of the fact that some of the members of the committee have long distances to travel the afternoon start was made necessary.

Dean Davenport, of the University of Illinois, who is well informed on the milk question and who has made a study of the costs of producing milk will lend his aid to the meeting. Dean Russell of the University of Wisconsin Agricultural school will also be present. Their presence and the fact that they have made costs one of their special fields will mean that the decision will be reached on a firm basis and one which will be entirely fair to both consumers and producers.

Those who will be present are: Dean Russell, University of Wisconsin, chairman, University of Illinois, Mortimer Fluck, Walworth county; George Vincent, Kenosha county; George Elia, Racine county; Louis Krause, Walworth county; J. L. Fisher, Rock county; John Lecher, Milwaukee county; O. B. Smith, Milwaukee county; W. Thelison, Mayor of Racine, and Mayor James A. Fathers, Janesville.

HORSEWHIP LEADER OF PACIFISTS

HUBBARD BIGELOW, HEAD OF PEOPLE'S CHURCH IN CINCINNATI TIED AND BEATEN BY MEN.

LIKE THE KU KLUX KLAN

Men Were Garbed in Robes Similar to Those Worn by the Renowned Ku Klux Klan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cincinnati, O., Oct. 29.—Hubbard Bigelow, head of the People's church of this city, one of the leaders of the People's Council of Defense, socialist and pacifist, was taken into a dense wood near Florence, Ky., shortly before midnight last night, tied to a tree and horsewhipped by men who were long-robed and hooded, similar to those described as worn by the renowned Ku Klux Klan, according to a report received today from Florence.

The men, with Bigelow as a prisoner, dragged and handcuffed, worked his way to the center of the woods, where they removed the handcuffs long enough to disrobe him and then tied him to a tree. One of the party then read from a piece of paper by the light of a lantern held by one of his companions: "In the name of the poor women and children of Belgium this man should be whipped." At a given signal another man, clothed from head to foot in white, stepped out of the circle that had been formed and with a "black-snake" whip delivered twelve lashes on Bigelow's back. About twenty men were then cut, Bigelow was warned to stay away from Cincinnati and he was released, while the party made their way back to their automobiles and disappeared. An hour in the woods, and seeing a church spire in the distance, he made his way towards it and found himself in Florence, Kentucky, about twenty miles from this city. He was taken to the home of Dr. Grant, where he received medical attention, and then, according to his own statement, he stayed at the residence of the night writing in detail his experiences of the night. It was not until late in the morning that he notified his friends where he was.

Bigelow was taken in custody by five men as he was entering a hall in Newport, Ky., last night, where he was to address a meeting of socialists. At the time of his apprehension handcuffs were put upon him and he was hurried thrust into a waiting automobile and spirited away. Recently federal authorities conducted a raid on his office in Cincinnati, where documents relating to the activities of the local People's Council were seized.

Sunday afternoon at his People's church, Bigelow prayed for "the rescue of the world from the hands of the proud men surrounding him."

GOVERNOR PHILIPP WILL ASK POWER TO MAKE APPOINTMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 29.—That Governor Philipp will submit the senatorial question to a special session of the legislature and ask for the power to make the appointment seems to be the course which will be followed. Each day the statements of Governor Philipp's advisors along this line grow stronger and further credence is given to the belief by the reply of Gov. Philipp to former State Senator John M. Whitehead, in which the governor requests that he be not referred to as a candidate until he has made an announcement to that effect.

"I have not yet joined that element of office-chasers who are ever ready to get onto the ticket for something whenever there is an election," is the statement of Governor Philipp to Senator Whitehead. "Such men become what is known as perennials in politics and I do not propose to join that class."

That the governor may not become a candidate is further indicated by the fact that R. B. Pixley, his former private secretary, in signed articles clearly indicates that the governor will not be a candidate in the coming election. Mr. Pixley is still a member of Gov. Philipp's political household.

Meantime comes the statement of Bart Williams, democratic opponent of Governor Philipp in the gubernatorial campaign, advising that the appointing power be given to the governor and suggesting the name of Chief Justice Winslow as a man on whom all parties would agree. Just as the sentiment is surging in favor of Justice Winslow, with all political elements joined in commending his candidacy, discovery is made that the constitution forbids the holding of any office by a supreme or circuit judge during the term for which he was elected.

The same section has been much in discussion in the past. A few years ago when Judge John Barnes was talked of as a gubernatorial candidate, the effort to change the constitution was debated by lawyers. When Judge Webb was a candidate for United States senator a few years ago it was raised as a bar. In the Webb case on the constitutionality of the act was the judge of the qualification of its own members and might have been another state was cited. The fact that the constitution of Wisconsin exists leads many to believe that Governor Philipp will ask Attorney General Owen to construe the provision, if he is seriously considering the appointment of Chief Justice Winslow.

Governor Philipp is on his vacation. Temporarily the affairs of state are being administered from a hunting shack on Lake Koshong. Before the end of the week, however, it is expected that Governor Philipp will issue a full statement giving his plan on the senatorial situation. In the meantime every indication is that the appointment route will be the one which he will follow.

ADMINISTRATION OF FUEL IS NECESSARY

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Washington, Oct. 29.—The most intensive and unwarlike of the war machine which supplies the energy that makes the war move on—the fuel administration. Housed in one of Washington's fashionable residences in the most exclusive section of the city, from the outside the fuel administration appears entirely unwarlike.

Within there are no evidences of war, but the conditions are such that always many people waiting to see the fuel administrator, Dr. Garfield, and to talk war with him.

Through the wheels of this machine, however, there is a war machine which is turning out the fuel which runs the factories, which in turn send out the supplies, which again in turn make the war go on. If operations should suddenly cease in the unobtrusive residential war machine at fuel administration headquarters, it would not be long before the nation's war makers would have to stop their operations.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, fuel administrator, erstwhile college professor, has built a war machine which would make a fine nesting place for the peace-loving birds. The most restful and peaceful of the many war making establishments in Washington. The hustle and bustle of other departments is absent. The fuel administration is a peaceful place.

Perhaps it is the peaceful atmosphere of Williams college that has been transferred to Washington with Dr. Garfield. At Williams college he has made a noiseless war engine.

The fuel administration is the baby member of the war family in Washington. As an organization it is also the smallest of the war organizations. Less than a hundred people are employed by this important body, which supplies the fuel for the nation.

This is actually a one-man war machine. Dr. Garfield has not been surrounded by a large staff of experts. He has three assistants, all experts in their own line. Outside of these men, however, the administration is operated by clerks who work at the direction of Dr. Garfield and his assistants. The clerical staff is not large. There is no publicity organization and the administration does not require large appropriation for its use.

It is generally understood, however, that the hand at the lever of this machine is the hand of all, the White House hand.

KING MURDER CASE GOES TO GRAND JURY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Concord, N. C., Oct. 29.—The second step toward the death chair or freedom for Gaston Bullock Means began here today. The Cabarrus county grand jury will decide tomorrow whether it "should" be ordered on evidence tending to show he murdered Rich Mrs. Maude King, the benefactress, here Aug. 29.

It was six days to a day after the globe-trotting Chicago woman's mysterious death that her protegee and confidant, Means, faced the grand jury of the county of the eighteen jurors must affirm the indictment. In that event, a date will at once be set for formal trial in the superior court here.

Means, charged with the murder of King, was the state for either a change of venue to an adjoining county of the district, or for a venire of jurors from an adjoining county. Means, however, has resided here for many years, it is felt, cannot altogether be relied upon.

It was not considered unlikely, either, that the defense will seek a postponement until the next, or January, session of the superior court should Means be held. It would show that they believe in the jurisdiction of Judge James L. Webb, who will "ride" the circuit at the beginning of the year.

Besides witnesses appearing at the preliminary here September 24 and 25, Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, sister of Mrs. King, will be summoned to the stand by the state.

It was thought doubtful as court cases this morning that a panel can be obtained from Cabarrus county folks. Most everybody has decided opinions one way or another, the case having been the sweetest of village discussion for weeks. Summoned of 75 to 100 veniremen from Iredell or Rowan counties was therefore believed likely.

GERMANS RUSH TO AID OF AUSTRIANS

From Berlin the word was given out that the Italians in a hurried retreat had lost and even hundred big guns. This is neither affirmed or denied by Rome. The Italian government however, retracts the statement first given out that the retreat was the result of the treachery of the second army.

Rome, Oct. 29.—The Italians are checking the advance of the Austro-German troops into the plains of northern Italy, the war office announces. The announcement follows: "The failure to resist on the part of some units forming the second army, has caused the Austro-German forces to break into our left wing on the Julian front. The valiant efforts of other troops did not enable them to prevent the enemy from breaking into the sacred soil of our fatherland. We are now withdrawing our line according to the plan prepared. All stores and depots in the evacuated places have been destroyed."

"The record of many memorable battles fought with success by our brave soldiers during two and one-half years of war is sufficient to assure the commander-in-chief that the army, which the honor and safety of the country are confided will know how to fulfill its duty."

The Italian troops are fulfilling their duty. The general staff are being carried out, the statement says.

HEMP RAISING MAY BE POPULAR IN ROCK CO.

Allen B. West, On Thursday evening an interesting meeting was held in the village halling. It was the interest of hemp raising. It was presided over by Mr. Perry and attended by about thirty farmers. The speaker of the evening was Prof. Wright of the agronomy department of the college of agriculture at Madison, who talked about hemp raising.

Wisconsin, Dr. Wright said, is the second state of the union in the production of hemp, the most of it being grown in Fond du Lac county. The vicinity of Brandon, where there is a factory for the manufacture of hemp.

This vicinity, in Rock county presents ideal conditions for this crop, and it is one that brings the farmer a profit of from $60 to $140 to the acre. Nor is it hard on the soil; in this it fits with the production of butter fat. The roots remain in the ground, adding humus, and the leaves are returned to the soil.

It is not a difficult crop to raise, being sown like wheat in the spring, just previous to corn planting time. The ground should be well prepared and made quite smooth, as the hemp is cut close to the ground. After sowing it requires no further attention until time for cutting, which is done about Sept. 1. In Kentucky, where hemp is raised, the work of cutting and binding is done by hand, but the international harrow has been perfected a machine for cutting and another for binding it, which it rented to the farmers about Brandon who are raising the hemp.

After the hemp is left on the ground for about three weeks, when the leaves drop off. At the end of this time it is bound into bundles and drawn to the factory, where it is stacked.

The seed is rather expensive, costing about $4 per bushel, requiring about two-thirds of a bushel to sow an acre. The seed never has no insect enemies or diseases and does not require a great expenditure of labor.

An acre of good land will produce about 1,500 pounds, which is worth 10 or 12 cents a pound at the factory.

To establish a factory and to procure a market for the hemp it is necessary to have 300 acres promised for growing the crop.

Some 200 acres have already been promised. A number of the farmers have visited Brandon and become interested in the hemp growing there and would like to see it a success in Rock county.

LIBERTY DAY GAMES AT CAMP MACARTHUR

(By Sergeant Beard.)

Camp MacArthur, Waco, Texas, Oct. 24, 1917.—Today was Liberty day at Camp MacArthur and we all were given a holiday (as the southerner says it).

With Camp MacArthur subscriptions to the Liberty loan well over the million dollar mark and the big day among the soldiers and before night it is expected the total will reach nearly a million and a quarter. One million twenty-four thousand five hundred and fifty dollars was subscribed up to last night.

That the loan might receive further boosting, the intensive training was called off today and athletic sports and speech making took its place. At noon it was said at Liberty loan headquarters that every man in camp would be reached before sunset.

Among the military camps of the country, Camp MacArthur is forging toward the top. General Haan says he expects the division to make a good showing as some of those that get their men from New York. In fact, it is no secret that he has high hopes of seeing the Wisconsin and Michigan boys head the list when the final figures are totaled.

This morning there were no less than fifty sporting events going over camp. Football was by far the most popular game and the boys asked in to it with a spirit that pleased the division officers. General Haan and his staff made a tour of the field and were highly pleased with the pep the boys displayed.

The loneliest boy in camp has been discovered. He is Corporal Francis C. Moore, in charge of the sick ward of 12th infantry. Back in Kalamazoo, Mich., where he was studying nursing when the call for troops came, Moore had so many engagements he often got them mixed, but down here in Waco, he has been so busy attending to the wants of the sick boys that he hasn't had time to meet a single girl. Moore blames his troubles on the fact that he "forgot nearly every night. People down town don't seem to think a soldier can be off duty in the afternoon, he says, and consequently he gets no invitations to dinners and automobile rides that he hears all the other boys telling about.

He complains that he never has had a chance to look the town over and he has as yet to be convinced that there are scores of pretty girls in Waco. "It is lonesome life, this war business," he complained to an officer this morning.

Officers and enlisted men are complaining over the poor mail service. Delivery of newspapers from northern cities is a bit of a miss proposition. Some days they come; some days they don't. Next to letters from dear ones, the soldier boy prizes his home newspaper. To miss it is a tragedy. It is said there is not help enough at the camp postoffice but the boys point out that this excuse or explanation does not remedy conditions. Another complaint is that men handling special delivery letters leave them at regimental headquarters instead of delivering them to the men they are addressed to direct. Sometimes a single regiment will receive 100 in a day. In view of this officers feel that the postoffice authorities insist that the letters reach their proper destination with all possible speed.

It will not be easy for soldiers to get discharges from the army from now on because of dependents back home. This was made evident today when General Haan issued this bulletin: "An act of congress approved October 6, 1917, provides for complete allotments of pay to enlisted men for certain dependents, for family allowances, under certain conditions, for the support of dependents, and for the insurance of officers and enlisted men. In view of the very liberal provision made in the law referred to above for the dependents of soldiers, which it is thought will in most cases be greater than the assistance the soldiers would render in civil life to such dependents, it is considered that very few cases, if any, will occur where an enlisted man should be discharged on account of dependent relatives, and it is desired by the department that no soldier be discharged until his case has been thoroughly investigated and conclusive evidence obtained that actual suffering exists, that the soldier has done his utmost to relieve same by proper allotment of his pay, and that it is absolutely necessary that he be discharged from the army."

The number of discharges granted in such cases will be reduced to a minimum. This morning the first and second platoons of our company staged a football game which resulted in a tie, 6

While the first and second platoons were battling for supremacy on the gridiron the third and fourth platoons took to the diamond and there fought a bitter battle. After nine innings of dreadful warfare, the fourth (or Midget) platoon commanded by Sergeant Murphy) weakened under the dreadful attack of the third platoon (commanded by Sergeant Grimshaw) and went down to defeat by the score of 6 to 3.

The lineup was as follows: Fourth platoon—Schmidt, c.; Langhere, p.; Hayes, 2b.; Milbrandt, 1b.; Murphy, 3b.; Livick, ss.; McKinney, rf.; Telesberg, cf.; Wells, lf.

Third platoon—Grimshaw, c.; M. Ryan, p.; Beard, ss.; Knopp, 1b.; Haz, 2b.; McCool, 3b.; Mason, rf.; Horn, cf.; Fosse, lf.

The detail for today was as follows: In charge of quarters—Sergeant Hermann. Patrol—Corporal Lutz, Privates Banker, Beinema, Berkalew, Berry, Bumgarner, Brown, B. Christensen, P. Weaver.

Company Notes. Private First Class Ernest Olson, after being appointed as first class private from private, is assisting Corporal Craig as a clerk and mail order.

Corporal Stanley Fosse certainly distinguished himself this morning when he caught three flies in succession while out in center field for the third platoon.

Private Robert Woodard is very busy these days and wants to be remembered in his Evansville friends.

Private Albert Vogel has a hard time chewing meat lately. We wonder why? Kenneth Wells played a fine game of ball with the fourth platoon, this morning, but he happened to be on the losing side. Better join the good platoon, Wells.

Private William Webber and William Warner are getting fat on the eats here in Waco, and one would hardly recognize the boys as they used to be in Janesville.

Private Paul Vogel is always dreaming of Reedsburg and coming back in his home town. We wonder who?

BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENING.

THE RESULT.

The four weeks of untiring effort on the part of the volunteer Liberty bond salesmen has resulted in a wonderful success. The returns from the nation as a whole show that the bond issue has been over-subscribed and right here at home, in Rock county, we have the pleasure of knowing that the apportionment set for this section has exceeded the figure set by many thousands. No county in the entire state, I doubt if there is one in the United States, has more individual subscribers in proportion to its population than Rock county," is the statement of the county director of the campaign, M. G. Jeffris.

It is pleasing to know this. It is also agreeable to learn that the city of Janesville, over and over, the figures set for it are maximum by many thousands, and that the work by the many volunteers was not in vain. The men and women who gave of their time, the Boy Scouts who labored so diligently, have the satisfaction of knowing their work has not been in vain. The Boy Scouts made a wonderful showing as the result of their week's work, the committee of the women of the city more than demonstrated their worth in this cause that affects all, and the men's committee have been untiring in their efforts with the wonderful result in the sum total subscribed.

Nor has the work been confined to Janesville alone. The various rural communities have shown remarkable activity. The town of Bradford, with its chairman, John Waugh, has set a banner mark for the rural districts and its sum total is something to be proud of. In fact in every township in the county the residents have responded nobly and the sum total is one that the entire community can be proud of and point to with pride. The government has been backed to the limit by the citizens as a nation and it should prove a lasting lesson to our enemies across the sea of what America means to do in this war.

LIBERTY BONDS.

Liberty bonds which have been subscribed for mean-as was explained by those selling them—an insurance against foreign oppression and a backing up by dollars and cents the men who have enlisted or been selected for the great army this nation is assembling. The man, woman, or child who has subscribed for a Liberty bond have not given their money to the government; they have loaned it. Behind each bond is the United States government. The fifty dollar, the hundred dollar, the five hundred dollar bond, is worth its face value just the same as a dollar, a two dollar or a five dollar bill of the United States. When you are told that the United States bonds are going to depreciate in value, that you will be forced to sell them for five to ten dollars loss within a short period, the person who tells you so is laboring under a misapprehension; or is undermining the credit of the government, and should be corrected. It is not a loyal statement to assert such a fact when the bonds stand ready to redeem every full paid bond at par value. We have loaned our money to Uncle Sam—not given it. It is an insurance against the future and those who tell you to the contrary might be called by what Roosevelt says, "a shorter and uglier name."

THE WAR.

Uncle Sam has sent his boys into the trenches over in France. We do not know how many are fighting there but we do know that those who are will give a good account of themselves. The first gun was fired by a "red-headed runner," the first shot of the United States in actual trench warfare. The placing of American troops in the first line trenches has come earlier than expected, but it is with pleasure to know that they marched in whistling, showing the spirit that has made this nation's fighters famous the world over, and now conducting themselves as soldiers and men. How many soldiers we actually have in France the newspapers are not permitted to say. They are not allowed to tell what contingents are now enroute. This is demanded by the federal government owing to the presence in this country of thousands of German sympathizers who might give the enemy valuable information as to the movement of troops that would result in the destruction of troop trains and loss of life. However, it is safe to state that already the United States has in France, in reach of the firing line, a sufficient number of trained soldiers to take the places of the French and English soldiers of more mature training, who may be sent to the Italian front. Russia is attempting to reorganize its army and hold the German advance but the weeks of anarchy and disruption have reached what was once a wonderful fighting machine. In the extreme east the Grecian troops, with those of Serbia and Rumania and the masses of French and English that will have its moral effect upon Bulgaria and Turkey and drive back the Austro-German host. In Italy the assaults of the combined Austro-German veterans have for a time stopped the advance of the Italians but with the reinforcements that are coming from the west front they will be able to hold their own. Taking it as a whole the situation is not discouraging and there is no reason for lamentations. Uncle Sam will soon be shipping millions of tons of provisions across shortly and then will follow thousands of troops, and then the great drive will begin. Meanwhile our boys are in the first line trenches and we are proud of them.

Senator John M. Whitehead made some very pertinent remarks about Governor Phillips in an interview published in a county paper, but the senator evidently expressed his views clearly and concisely. He did not mince words and what he said is worth considering.

Well, we may not have been so slack in our Liberty loan subscription as many thought. When it comes to per capita subscriptions in relation to population, Janesville is ahead of Beloit, figure it out as you may.

No half-way patriot, who seeks the United States senatorship by the political method, is going to be acceptable to the citizens of Wisconsin to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Hustling.

Martin Gillen certainly made an impression upon Janesville in his address here on Thursday night—an impression that will be lasting.

One test of patriotism is not how much you can subscribe, but whether you are willing to permit your own flesh and blood to go into the trenches if needed. No man, rich or poor, is immune from this test and the richer they are the better able they are to go into active service. Political pulls should not count in this selective draft.

When the next United States senator is chosen from Wisconsin he will be selected not only for his patriotic utterances, but for his patriotic actions. No man with a slacker in his family is going to be given consideration when it comes to selecting a senator. What the state wants is a true patriot, not a mouth-patriot, but a sample of the genuine article.

It is possible that some time in the future a platonic warfare is going to be originated, but until that time our boys in khaki will have to train and be equipped to meet the ravages of the savage Hun who have gone back in civilization as does the Indian who attends a training school for his race, and then returns to his tribe.

Our high school cadets have evinced a desire of beating the congressional legislation as to universal military training and the next thing the citizens will be called upon to do is to help uniform these boys so as to give them the feeling that their individual efforts are not in vain.

It has been suggested by an exchange that, "perhaps the elements are short of fuel and consequently serve the weather raw." This may be true, but if that is the case we need a few more fuel conservation agents to look after Dame Nature's supply.

As long as the Sultan of Turkey lives he will find one consolation in knowing that Islam and "Me und Gott" are one and the same Being, and Emperor Wilhelm will be his friend and bosom companion.

If you love liberty refuse to waste the butter or eat meat on the meatless days, or wheat bread on wheatless days. Save the scraps and make soup and be a true conservation agent.

She is kind an' she is gentle, an' sometimes she's full of fun. An' she's very sympathetic when some dreadful thing you've done. An' she likes to buy you candy, an' she's always gettin' toys. That you wish your Pa would get you, for she hasn't any boys. But sometimes she's over-joying, an' your cheeks turn red with shame. Whenshe smother you with kisses, but you like her just the same.

One time my father took me to my aunt's, and he said: You will stay here till I get you, an' be sure you go to bed. When your aunt says—its time to, an' be good an' mind her, too. An' when you come home we'll try to have a big surprise for you. I did as I was told to, an' when Pa came back for me, he said there was a baby at the house for me to see.

I've been visitin' at aunt's for a week or two, an' Pa has written that he's comin' soon to take me home to Ma. He says they're gettin' lonely, an' I'm kind of lonely, too. Coz an aunt is not exactly what your mother is to you. I am hungry now to see her, but I'm wondering today. If Pa's bought another baby in the time I've been away.

$806,550 HAS BEEN SUBSCRIBED IN CITY

JANESVILLE HAS PASSED THE EXPECTED TOTAL, ACCORDING TO REPORTS ISSUED THIS MORNING.

TUESDAY IS LAST DAY

Banks Will Receive Payments and Applications Today and Tuesday—Totals Not in.

Janesville has passed the eight hundred thousand dollar mark in the drive for subscriptions to the second issue of the Liberty bonds, according to available totals this morning given out by the office of A. P. Lovejoy, local chairman. The figures this noon showed that $806,550 has already been subscribed. Subscriptions were pouring in at the office all morning and throughout the afternoon. The definite figures as to the final amount which this city will subscribe will be in doubt until Tuesday or Wednesday. The passing of the seven hundred and fifty thousand dollar mark was celebrated Saturday evening at six o'clock with the blowing of the factory whistles. When the count was made late in the afternoon to determine whether the mark had been reached, it was found that over seven hundred and eighty thousand had been subscribed. During the evening the banks were closed and subscriptions for the bonds and money for the initial payment, which is necessary.

Payments on the bonds will be received at the various banks today and tomorrow. That all who have not made their initial payments in the past week are expected to do so during that time in order that the subscription will count. Several people who doubted their subscriptions at the various banks, have now appeared at their banks to make the added payments, and all those who subscribed are expected to visit their banks today or tomorrow.

Although the definite in the form of reports from the various local chairmen have been received by M. G. Jeffris, Rock county chairman, in a statement this morning, he felt certain that over two and one-quarter millions would be subscribed. If this total is reached, it will mean that Rock County will be listed as one of the leading counties in the nation during subscriptions taking population as the basis of comparison. A survey of the population of the county and of the number of bond takers every six months throughout the county has taken a bond. This is a record which will surpass that of any county throughout the state, and it would also be a record in the entire country. The response in this county has been one which has been very satisfactory to the campaign leaders.

Much interest was displayed in this city as to the outcome of the campaign of the Boy Scouts. The members of the various troops entered into the work with all the energy and enthusiasm that they could bring to the report has not been made to the local chairman. It is known, however, that the number of subscriptions far surpasses the expectations. The final total bond sold by A. P. Lovejoy to the member of any one of the scout troops that sold the most bonds. The bond would then be given to the troop of which the boy was a member. The final result showed that Malcolm Mount, sold forty-eight bonds and was the winner of the bond for his troop No. 3. David Atwood was second in the contest with thirty-one bonds sold.

The work of the women's committees in the various wards was a great success, and a great aid to the other campaigners. The final total given for the sum secured by the five committees of women who worked in the wards of the city. A. P. Lovejoy, in a statement this morning, stated that the women of the city had been given more credit for their work than the sum indicates, because of the fact that they visited many people who later came to their banks to make their subscriptions. The figures of the ward teams are as follows: first ward, $17,600; second ward, $10,150; third ward, $19,000; fourth ward, $7,000; fifth ward, $5,000. The final total for the city, however, is not known until Tuesday evening, because of the fact that the subscriptions are still being turned in. The same will apply to the county because each local chairman must send his report and send it to M. G. Jeffris, as soon as the work is completed in the various districts.

Dr. F. T. Richards has removed his office two blocks west on Milwaukee street to No. 223 West Milwaukee street, over Reliable Drug Co.

Idea of Ancient Origin.
All peoples in all times have seen an intimate connection between the moon and fruitfulness, both animal and vegetable. "Even now," says the New York Medical Journal, "the onions which come to our city market owe their excellence to the farmer's careful conjunction of planting time with the phases of the moon." Such ideas have been so universal that man's unconscious mind still preserves them, though his judgment may scorn them as absurd.

NOTICE TO PHONE USERS.
Starting November 1st, there will be a Government War Tax of 5c each on all toll phone calls, amounting to 5c or over. Therefore, after November 1st, the regular 15c long distance phone call will be 20c. Add 5c for any call amounting to more than 15c.

Judgments Rendered: Judgment to the amount of $14.15 was rendered in Justice of the Peace Gardner Kalvelage's court this morning in favor of S. M. Jacobs for bill for fees and grain against W. J. Cannon, and for $17.50 against Ben Miller.

Social of United Brethren: Division No. 1 of the Ladies Aid society will give a Halloween party on Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Looking Ahead.
Little Mary, aged ten, gazed admiringly at the diamond rings glittering on the fingers of her grandmother. "When I marry," said the child, "I suppose I will get these rings as a wedding present." Up spoke her brother Bob, aged seven. "Not on your sweet life," said he. "You get one of them; the other goes to my wife."

CAMP GRANT NOTES

Camp Grant, Oct. 28.—Company C, 331st Machine Gun Battalion. One of the worst rain storms that has been recorded in this section of the country struck Camp Grant shortly after five o'clock Thursday evening and continued until late Friday morning. It was even more severe than the two storms that struck the camp last week.

The men on arising Friday morning were dismayed at the sight. The blocks were all the naked eye could perceive was water. It was a strange sight and many of the men are still wondering where all the water came from, which has been coming from for the past two weeks.

The ground on which the different barracks of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion stand resemble a small lake. The water is all under water. The sidewalk between the barracks of the companies are all under water. No material damage was reported.

When going to the barracks within their barracks today and are being instructed in the art of soldiering by the non-commissioned officers, who, by the way, are getting to be quite picky about the division headquarters.

Rainy days heretofore have always been welcome because of the advent of a rainy day the men knew they would not have to drill, but with the way it has been raining the men are now clamoring for fair weather and all say they would much rather drill.

The rain was productive of a very interesting and instructive lecture to the men of the 331st Machine Gun Battalion. The lecture was given by Frank L. Grounman, formerly of the Bower City bank in Janesville, received his appointment yesterday as a first sergeant in the division headquarters, and the boys are all glad that Frank was the one to land this place.

Cyrus Montgomery of Evansville, was the one donor of a very handsome Victoria to the men of Company C and the machine is proving to be very popular with the men.

First Sergeant Smith received a fresh box of cigars yesterday and for two he finally was seen to give two cigars away. Better save them Howard, these are war times.

Private James Quinn was in the city on two different occasions. When he last was in the city he was making these visits regularly.

Sergeant Harold Stickney is getting to be a super man every day. He has been a great asset to the company since he is not drinking or studying.

While watching the Liberty loan parade in Rockford Thursday afternoon William Joseph saw a crowd of eight men imitating the burial of the Kaiser and Bill immediately started to criticize the shape of the coffin.

Corporal Cornelius C. Cunningham, the rental company clerk came to the front yesterday in the guise of a song writer and he made a decided hit with his new version of "On Wisconsin."

The roller rink in the city is proving to be a great amusement center for the men of the 331st division, and a person will find the floor filled with khaki clad men every evening.

Beloit, bought $2,500 worth of Liberty bonds. He strongly advocates assisting Uncle Sam both physically and financially if possible. It was good cash that he bought the bonds with.

The government is planning on building a new theatre at this camp that will seat five thousand people. The plans have not arrived yet, but are expected to be here in a few days.

Going to non-com. school is just like going to college, the non-commissioned officers claim. Corporal Paul Kvale of Orderville states that he never studied harder in his life. The men study every night, so that there will be no lack of knowledge in school. Competition is of the keenest nature and would be a delight to many a college professor to see his former pupils grinding away night after night.

Lieutenant Roy McIntosh drove his car to Chicago and returned last Sunday, and although he claims to have had engine trouble on the return trip, he was back in ample time to take the men out on the early morning physical exercise.

Lieutenant Carl Gibson is getting to be a busier man every day. Besides trying to teach a platoon in the art of drilling, he is chairman of the musical committee and battalion press officer.

Corporal John Daley is getting to be a frequent visitor to Rockford, and he has been postmarked from that city he has found a place to spend his leisure time.

Private Oscar Carlson of Janesville, is looking for the owner of a highly valued pair of pin which he has in his possession. Another Cinderella, and Oscar is very good looking.

Sergeant Perry Gifford of Milton claims that he wouldn't wear a suit of clothes again, and invites all his friends to come to Camp Grant and indulge in a suit of the latest fall fashion.

It comes to class the men of Company C claim that their officers not only have it on any of the others in this camp, but they are in a class all by themselves when it comes to dressing.

Private Louis Premo is developing into some boxer and after a few more lessons under the tutelage of Private Ben Thorpe, he will be in condition to fight with the best of them.

Magazines are always welcome and one of the most beneficial ways for a soldier to pass his leisure hours is by reading some good literature.

Private Lobe was seen running along the country road at an early hour yesterday morning. It is said that he is toughening himself for his next hectic engagement.

General civilian cook, John Robert Young, who hails from the Windy City, is developing into a first class checker player and one can find him any night in the kitchen trying to snipe out new plays.

Corporal Wilson is wearing a very dejected look for the past few days and it is hinted that Shorty is all out of hand and is wondering how long it will be before his next consignment arrives.

The Easily Satisfied.
Indeed it does take all kinds of people to make a world, or even this garden spot of it for that matter, and occasionally in our daily walk we run across a person of the type who feels that he has not lived in vain when referred to in the paper as a prominent society man.—Ohio State Journal.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Oct. 28.—The Milwaukee Normal football team was clearly outclassed here Saturday by the local Normal squad when they were beaten by a score of 34 to 0. Straight football was played by the local team, the forward pass being used but twice and then going for a touchdown. At times Milwaukee was able to make first down two or three times through the local line but the goal was never in danger. In the second quarter Bortz fullback for the local team intercepted a forward pass and ran forty yards for a touch down. Maps, left half, was a good ground gainer being able to pick holes through the line and advance the ball. In the first quarter Curtin of Milwaukee had his arm broken. POOR FOOD CAUSES DEATHS IN EUROPE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Athens, Oct. 29.—Bad food and the lack of all food among the poor because of European war conditions are shown in one of the main causes of great mortality and sickness in the official health report of Athens, which says:

"During the month of July there has been a very great increase in sickness, due certainly to the bad food of the population, to the deplorable quality of the foodstuffs, and to the complete want of some of the chief articles of alimentation." The death list is given at 510 or seventeen a day.

Based on this report, the Messenger of Athens makes a plea to the entente powers for "more bread before more cannon." "Let us have bread," it says, "from charity, from military or political reasons, or from solidarity. Let us have bread! Read the municipal statistics." It declares that what England and France know of privation would be luxury for the majority of the Greeks, who before the war could hardly feed themselves, and since the blockage of Greek ports have been under a veritable famine. Rice, dry beans and peas, the chief foods of the poor, have disappeared or reached fabulous prices making them

FRENCH ENVOY'S WIFE IS POPULAR

Mrs. Joseph Simon.

Mrs. Joseph Simon, wife of the French minister of finance, is one of the most charming and popular of the foreign women who have accompanied their husbands to Washington. She has been much entertained.

Impossible for the poor, it asserts, while meat, fish, eggs, poultry, butter and milk were never possible for the poor except on holidays and are now entirely beyond their reach.

Family Traits.

You hear a great deal of scientific talk about "family traits" appearing in young people after the ancestors who had these traits have been dead many years. There was once a great shipbuilder named Steers, who built the yacht America, which won the cup from England many years ago. He had a shipyard in Manhattan. His son became a judge, and never made ships, but his son's son, however, though he studied law, could design and whistle out the best toy boats going. Yet the lawyer never had any practice in carpentering, nor had his daughter, who could handle a knife like a master. She made a specialty of music, and could play the violin and the piano, but she and her father had both of them inherited the knack of designing and modeling from their ancestors.

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Virginia Valli deserted interpretative dancing for moving pictures two years ago and danced so well before the camera that she was speedily graduated into the ranks of the country's film stars. Since that time she has been well and favorably known to the film fans who have been following the Black Cat features and the George Ade Fables in slang, both of which have scored a big hit. Few of the screen faries who have been elevated to stardom in recent months enjoy a larger following than this dainty and charming young woman.

Two years ago Miss Valli took advantage of an opportunity to appear before a Essany camera in a dancing role, for which she had established an excellent reputation. She photographed so well and danced so gracefully that was soon cast for other pictures at the Essany studios and became a permanent addition to the studio's staff. She was given her first opportunity to star in productions of a high order in the Black Cat features, and is now appearing in the Ade Fables in Slang. Miss Valli is a product of Chicago, where she was born and educated.

RETURNS TO STAGE IN NEW PRODUCTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Returning to the stage so that her daughter will have every comfort and advantage, Bessie McCoy Davis, widow of Richard Harding Davis, will appear in a dancing part at the Century theater tonight in "Miss 1917," a new production.

The reason which brings the "Yama Yama Girl" back to Broadway is the reason which took her away—her husband, Richard Harding Davis, the dancer. It is to make life smooth for Hope that Bessie McCoy, the Yama Yama Girl, is returning to Broadway.

Bessie McCoy is not going back on the stage, said Mrs. Davis. "It is Bessie McCoy Davis—a totally different person who will appear under her own name, Bessie McCoy Davis. No one could be with Richard Harding Davis five minutes without becoming a better human being. I know people who will see me dance will say 'I wonder where she has left her poor little hope.' So I want to say to them now, Little Hope will be safely tucked away in her bed. She will have a bath given her by her own mother and will have eaten a supper which her own mother cooked."

Virginia Valli, star in George Ade fables.

Anita King has seen out a formal announcement to the daily press, declaring her state of single blessedness. It was said that last Saturday she wedded Bobbie King, San Diego aviator, while visiting in that city. Anita says there's nothing to it, and that she has no thought whatever of entering wedlock.

Marie Dressler says she wants to remain in the movies two more years, after which she plans to retire from the amusement business for good. All told she has been before the public thirty years. Marie reckons that is long enough.

Influence of Moonlight.

Doctor Sadger of Vienna cites cases of somnambulists who "under the influence of moonlight are called to times and scenes of active childish wishes. The moon calls them in deep sleep to act out dream wishes." The Medical Journal suggests that the key to sleepwalking and other kindred disorders of childhood and late life may be found in moonlore.

First Friend—You know Jenkins, don't you? He's certainly left all the other optimists away behind now!

Second Friend—How so?

First Friend—Well, he tried to give the cheerful feeling to "Silver Threads Among the Gold" by making it over into something emphasizing the fact of there still being Golden Threads Among the Silver.

Second Friend—Yes?

First Friend—And the editors all turned him down for it on account of the vice-versa form knocking the meter endways.

Second Friend—Yes?

First Friend—Well, what did he do but write under the title "Vers Libre," and get a large check by return mail.

Eat More Vegetables.

Tomatoes are so beneficial in their effect on the liver that they have been aptly styled the "vegetable calomel." Celery is an excellent nerve tonic and is good for people suffering from rheumatism. Watercress is credited with having tonic properties. We have always known that parsnips and carrots are good for the complexion. The reason for this is that both vegetables contain arsenic, which has an almost magical effect on the skin. Onions are supposed to be without an equal as a nerve tonic, blood purifier and general cleanser of the system. Lettuce is conducive to sleep because it contains opium. Parsley is excellent for the stomach and aids digestion.

Singing Prevents Consumption.

A well-known tenor who was in danger of losing his voice once took on a job in one of the petroleum refining rooms as an ordinary employee, with the result that he was soon able to resume his work on the concert platform. Which reminds us that singing is excellent for consumption. Sometimes it assists as a cure, but it is nearly always effective as a preventive.

TWO ATTRACTIONS AT MYERS THEATER

A Show on Saturday and Sunday, "The End of a Perfect Day," and "A Soldier's Bride."

The Saturday attraction, matinee and night, was a play presented by Caskell & McVitty, which was not up to their usual standard. There were many places where it could have been strengthened. However, it may be that it was a good bid at the price.

On Sunday Fleck and Lever offered "A Soldier's Bride," which was on the musical comedy order and much better than the Saturday attraction. Some fairly good comedy and dancing were offered and a number of good songs were rendered by the chorus and principals.

Hurrah For Rock Co.

It takes Rock Co. to produce the men Whenever Uncle Sam is ready for them. She turns them out like Cos. "L" and "M." You'll say, "There is some class to them." Then back them up with her drafted men. The "cream of the cities" you'll say of them. Oh! I'll take Rock Co. to beat the "Dutch." You remember the Irishman Gillen stated that much in his glorious speech at the opera house. Which produced the bonds and brought down the house. But we need not wonder why Rock Co. is great. When we see big "Mac" Jeffris boosting up the state. Oh, I'll take Rock Co. to protect our boys from the "Huns." With a few million dollars worth of "Liberty Bonds."

Conserve The Nation's Food

TONS OF FOOD ARE WASTED

By P. G. HOLDEN.

HUNDREDS of tons of human food are wasted every day in Chicago and corresponding amounts in every other city in the United States. The sources of this waste are: First, improper care of fruits and vegetables in wholesale and retail stores; second, failure to dispose of them before they spoil; third, table and kitchen "left-overs" from hotels, restaurants, and dwellings.

Barrels and boxes filled with decaying fruits and vegetables are daily gathered up by city garbage wagons from the rear of Chicago commission houses and taken to the municipal reducing plant, where the fats are converted into glycerine, a small portion of the rest made into tannage and the balance destroyed. Between 400 and 500 tons of garbage is taken to the plant every day. It contains about 2 per cent of fats and 25 per cent of tannage.

While this is a reduction of 35 per cent as compared with a year ago, much of this waste of human food could be prevented if the produce were disposed of at reduced prices or given away before it spoiled.

Garbage from the larger hotels, restaurants, and many flats is sold to private scavengers. In hundreds of flats the garbage is burned. This garbage, which aggregates probably another 500 tons daily, contains a much larger per cent of fats—so needful for food—than that taken to the municipal plant. Much of this waste would be stopped if we were careful not to order or cook more than we can eat or were more careful to serve in appetizing dishes what is left over from previous meals.

Waste! Waste! Waste! Enough food is wasted in the United States to feed the nation.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They do not injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take the bile from the liver and quickly correct it. Why waste the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the teeth. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

LONGING FOR A CHILD

Young Wife Almost in Despair. Now has Beautiful Baby Girl.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought joy to many childless women by restoring them to normal health. Here is a notable case. Omaha, Neb.—"I suffered from female troubles when I was seventeen years old. At eighteen I was married and my trouble was no better so I consulted a physician who said that there was no hope. I could do and I could not have children. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has proved worth its weight in gold to me for I am not only well but have a baby girl, as when I hear of any woman suffering as I was I tell her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. H. Hughes, 19 Majestic Apts., Omaha, Neb. In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

detail, largely concerned with matters of routine, especially referring to relations with the garrison of the fort, and Cassion's authority over De Baugis, but the closing paragraph had evidently been added later, and had personal interest. It read: "Use your discretion as to D'Artigny, but violence will hardly be safe; he is thought too well of by La Salle, and that fox may get Louis' ear again. We had best be cautious. Chevet, however, has no friends, and I am told, possesses a list of the La Chesapeake property, and other documents which had best be destroyed. Do not fall in this, nor fear results. We have gone too far to hesitate now."

I took this page, and thrust it into my breast. It was not much, and yet it might prove the one needed link. I ran through the packet of letters, but they apparently had no bearing on the case.

Assured that I had overlooked nothing, I thrust the various articles back, rewrapped the bag, and returned to the outer room. As I paused before the fire, someone rapped at the door. I stood erect, my fingers gripping the pistol, which I still retained. Again the raps sounded, clearly enough defined in the night, yet not violent or threatening.

"Who is there?" I asked.

"Your husband, my dear—Francis Cassion."

"But why do you come? It was the pledge of De Baugis that I was to be left alone."

"A fair pledge enough, although I was not consulted. From the look of your eyes, little difference if I had been. You are as sweet in disposition as ever, my dear; yet never mind that—we'll soon settle our case now. I warrant you, meanwhile I am content to wait until my time comes. 'Tis not you I seek tonight, but my dressing case."

"Your dressing case?"

"Ay, you know it well, a brown leather bag I bore with me during our journey."

"And where is it, monsieur?"

"Beneath the bunk in the sleeping room. Pass it out to me, and I will ask no more."

"I will be sure if you keep your word," I said quietly. "For I still carry Hugo Chevet's pistol, and know how to use it. Draw away from the door, monsieur, and I will thrust out the bag."

I lowered the bar, opening the door barely wide enough to permit the bag's passage. The light from the fire gleamed on the barrel of the pistol held in my hand. It was the work of an instant, and I saw nothing of Cassion, but as the door closed, he laughed scornfully.

"This your game tonight, madame?" he said spitefully. "but tomorrow I play my hand. I thank you for the bag, as it contains my commission. By virtue of it I shall assume command of this Fort St. Louis, and I know how to deal with murderers. I congratulate you on your lover, madame—good night."

I must have slept from sheer exhaustion, although I made no attempt to lie down. It was broad daylight when I awoke, aroused by pounding on the door. To my inquiry a voice answered, "Madame, I have a message for you. An order to enter, bearing a tray, which he deposited on the table. Without speaking, he turned to leave the room, but I suddenly felt courage to address him.

"You were not of our party," I said gravely. "Are you a soldier of M. de Baugis?"

"No, madame," and he turned facing me, his countenance a pleasant one. "I am not a soldier at all, but I serve M. de Baugis."

"Ah, I am glad of that. You will bear to your master a message?"

"Perhaps, madame," his tone somewhat doubtful. "You are the wife of Monsieur Cassion?"

"Do not hesitate because of that," I hastened to say, believing I understood his meaning. "While it is true I am legally the wife of Francois Cassion, my sympathies now are altogether with the Sieur d'Artigny. I would have you ask M. de Baugis to confer with me."

"Yes, madame."

"You have served with D'Artigny?"

"You know him well?"

"Three years, madame; twice he saved my life on the great river. M. de Baugis shall receive my message."

I could not but, although I made the endeavor, and finally crossed to the window, opened the heavy wooden shutters, and gazed without. What a marvelous scene that was! Never before had my eyes looked upon so fair a view, and I stood silent and fascinated. My window opened to the westward, and I gazed down from the very edge of the vast rock into the wide valley. Great tree-tops were below, and I had to lean far out to see the silvery waters lapping the base of the precipice, but a little beyond, the full width of the noble stream became visible, decked with islands, and winding here and there between green-clad banks, until it disappeared to the far distance.

I had neglected to bar the door, and as I stood there gazing in breathless fascination, a sudden step on the floor caused me to turn in alarm. My eyes encountered those of De Baugis, who stood hat in hand.

"Tis a fair view, madame," he said politely. "In all my travels I have seen no nobler domain."

"It hath a peaceful look," I answered, still struggling with the memory. "Can it be true the savages hold the valley?"

"All too true—see, yonder, where the smoke still shows, dwell the Kaskaskians. Not a lodge is left, and the bodies of their dead strew the ground. Along those meadows three weeks since there were the happy villages of twelve tribes of peaceful Indians; today those who yet live are fleeing for their lives."

"And this fort, monsieur?"

"Safe enough, I think, although no one of us can venture ten yards beyond the gate. The Rock protects us, madame, yet we are greatly outnumbered, and with no ammunition to waste. 'Twas the surprise of the raid which left us thus helpless. Could we have been given time to gather our friendly Indians together, the story would be different."

"They are not cowards, then?"

"Not with proper leadership. We have seen them fight often since we invaded this land. 'Tis my thought many of them are hiding now beyond those hills, and may find some way to reach us. I suspected such an effort last night, when I sent out the rescue party which brought you in. Ah, that reminds me, madame; you sent for me?"

"Yes, M. de Baugis. I can speak to you frankly? You are the friend of Sieur d'Artigny?"

"Faith, I hope I am, madame, but I know not what has got into the lad—he will tell me nothing."

"I suspected as much, monsieur. It was for that reason I have sent for you. He has not even told you the story of our journey?"

wild for the lad's blood; and how came these to be trouble between Rene and the furtrader? Bahl! I know the lad is no murderer, but no one will tell me the facts."

"Then I will, monsieur," I said gravely. "It was because of my belief that Sieur d'Artigny would reveal an explanation that I sent for you. The truth need not be concealed; not from you, at least, the commander of Fort St. Louis."

"Pardon, madame, but I am not that. La Salle left me in command with less than a dozen men. De Baugis came later, under commission from La Barre, but he also had but a handful of followers. To save quarrel we agreed to divide authority, and so got along fairly well, until M. Cassion arrived with his party. Then the odds were altogether on the other side, and De Baugis assumed command by sheer force of rifles. 'Twas La Salle's wish that no resistance be made, but, faith, with the Indians scattered, I had no power. This morning things have taken a new phase. An hour ago M. Cassion assumed command of the garrison by virtue of a commission he produced from the Governor La Barre, naming him major of infantry. This gives him rank above Captain de Baugis, and, besides, he bore a letter authorizing him to take command of all French troops in this valley, if, in his judgment, circumstances rendered it necessary. No doubt he deemed this the proper occasion."

"To assure the conviction and death of D'Artigny?" I asked, as he paused.

"That is your meaning, monsieur?"

"I cannot see it otherwise," he answered slowly, "although I hesitate to make so grave a charge in your presence, madame. Our situation here is scarcely grave enough to warrant his action, for the fort is in no serious danger from the Indians. De Baugis, while no friend of mine, is still a fair-minded man, and merciful. He cannot be made a tool for any purpose of revenge. This truth Major Cassion has doubtless learned, and hence assumes command himself to carry out his plans."

I looked into the soldier's dark, clear-cut face, feeling a confidence in him which impelled me to hold out my hand.

"M. de Baugis," I said, determined now to address him in all frankness, "is it true that I am legally the wife of this man of whom you speak, but this only enables me to know his motives better. This condemnation of Sieur d'Artigny is not his plan alone; it was born in the brain of La Barre, and Cassion merely executes his orders. I have here the written instructions under which he operates."

I held out to him the page from La Barre's letter.

CHAPTER XX.

The Court-Martial.

De Baugis took the paper from my hand, glanced at it, then lifted his eyes inquiringly to mine.

"Tis in the governor's own hand. How came this in your possession?"

"I found it in Cassion's private bag last night, under the berth yonder. Later he came and carried the bag away, never suspecting it had been opened. His commission was there also. Read it, monsieur."

He did so slowly, carefully, seeming to weigh every word, his eyes darkening, and a flush creeping into his swarthy cheeks.

"Madame," he exclaimed at last, "I care not whether the man be your husband, but this is a damnable conspiracy, hatched months ago in Quebec."

"I know my head. 'Beyond doubt, monsieur.' 'And you found nothing more—no documents taken from Hugo Chevet?' 'None, monsieur; they were either destroyed in accordance with La Barre's instructions, or else M. Cassion has them on his person.' 'But I do not understand the reason for such foul treachery. What occurred back in New France to cause the murder of Chevet and this attempt to convict D'Artigny of the crime?' 'Sit here, monsieur,' I said, my voice trembling, 'and I will tell you the whole story. I must tell you, for there is no one else in Fort St. Louis whom I can trust.'"

I told the tale simply, concealing nothing, not even my growing love for D'Artigny. The man listening inspired my utmost confidence—I sought his respect and faith. As I came to the end for a moment he remained motionless and silent, his eyes grave with thought.

"Tis a strange, sad case," he said finally, "and the end is hard to determine. I believe you, madame, and honor your choice. The case is strong against D'Artigny; even your testimony is not for his defense. Does M. Cassion know you saw the young man that night?"

"He has dropped a remark or two which show suspicion. Possibly some one of the men saw me outside the Mission house, and made report."

"Then he will call you as a witness. If I know the nature of Cassion's plan of trial is a mere form, although doubtless he will ask the presence of Captain de Baugis and M. de la Durantaye. Neither will oppose him, so long as he furnishes the proof necessary to convict. He will give his evidence, and call the Indian, and perchance a soldier or two, who will swear to whatever he wishes. If needed, he may bring you in also to strengthen the case. D'Artigny will make no defense, because he has no witnesses, and because he has a fool notion that he might compromise you by telling the whole truth."

"Then there is no hope; nothing we can do?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

"Mr. Smithers," said his wife, "if I remember rightly, you have often said that you disliked to see a woman constantly getting herself into print."

"I do," said Smithers, positively. "You consider it unwomanly and indelicate, I believe?"

"Very much," he replied. "You don't see how any man could allow his wife to do anything of the kind?"

"Certainly I don't."

"Well, Mr. Smithers, in view of all the facts in the case, I feel justified in asking you for a new silk dress."

"A new silk dress?"

"Yes, for the last eight years I have had nothing better than calico, and I want something else. I'm tired of getting into print."

"A shopkeeper recently lent his grandson enough money to purchase a motorcycle. The money was to be paid back in installments, the machine to remain the property of the grandfather until the last installment had been made. One day while out riding the boy met his grandfather and jumped off his motorcycle. 'Say, grandfather,' said the boy, 'who does this machine belong to?' 'It belongs to me until you have made the last payment. That was the agreement, you know. But why do you ask?' 'Well, I just wanted to make sure,' replied the boy, with a grin. 'Your motorcycle needs a new tire.'

It was on the morning of St. Patrick's day and the farmer thought he would treat his servant boy, who he gave him a very big glass of whisky. The farmer's wife thought she would treat him also, but she gave it to him in a very small glass. He looked at it and asked:

"Mam, how are those glasses made?"

"Oh, you know, these glasses are all blown."

"Well," answered the servant, "who blows them? One must have been very short of breath."

Don't put on the roof until you investigate

It is poor economy to save money by substituting something inferior but wouldn't you like to save on cost if you could get something better? You can get a better roof for less money if you put on

Certain-teed Roofing

Before its merits were recognized, roll roofing was regarded as a more or less temporary roof—but now CERTAIN-TEED has demonstrated that it is not only a most durable roof, but also the most efficient roof.

It is economical to buy, inexpensive to lay and costs practically nothing to maintain. It is light weight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant and weather-tight.

It is now used as the preferable type of roof for office buildings, factories, hotels, stores, warehouses, garages, farm buildings etc., where durability is demanded. CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply).

There are many roll roofings on the market, but only one CERTAIN-TEED. It pays to get the best. It costs no more to lay a CERTAIN-TEED roof than it does to lay a poor roof, but there is a vast difference in the wear. You can't tell the quality of a roofing by looks or feel. Your only safety is the label. Be sure that it is CERTAIN-TEED—then you are certain of quality and guaranteed satisfaction.

Certain-teed Slate-Surfaced Asphalt Shingles are supplanting wood and slate shingles for residences. They cost less, are just as good looking, wear better, won't fall off, buckle or split. They are fire-retardant, and do not have to be painted or stained.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes are the best quality paint materials, ground and mixed with mechanical accuracy. Made for all uses and in all colors. With paint, as with roofing, the name CERTAIN-TEED is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction.

JACKSON PLAYS IN FIRST BIG SERIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Oct. 29.—Joe Jackson, star of a decade and then some, took a glance at his first world's series this fall when he watched the recent grapple between Giants and White Sox as a member of the latter team. And Joe didn't seem to be worried about it, either, when he admitted his misfortune.

"Every year when the baseball season ends, I feel like I've been hit just as soon as I can get there, and I stick right there until it's time to go north again and begin training. I get enough baseball in a season without going to a winter series and watching it from a grandstand seat."

Last year Joe turned in Chicago long enough to take part in the city series in that city. He figure almost as decided as the world's series, since the big even is the only thing that ever prevents the playing of the Sox-Cubs games annually.

The year he expects to hibernate on his own farm, a Georgia beauty spot he has had his eyes on for some time. Joe is from the Carolinas originally and is somewhat stuck on the farm. He took an option on his new farm last summer and used his series out to pay the balance after the games had been finished.

MONROE WINS GAME ON SATURDAY, 40-0

As a result of Janesville's being defeated by a superior team from the Monroe high school, the local team's chances for making a name for themselves on the roll of football history, seemed to be dimmed. However, the team improves a great deal they may end their year without a victory to their credit. The high still has three hard games before them and it is up to them to improve to such an extent that they may, if possible, win one if not all of those battles.

Next Saturday the team will go to Waukesha to play the high school from that city and although the strength of their opponent is not known preparation are being made for a hard battle. On Nov. 10 will be one of the hardest battles fought by the locals and will be against the strong squad from Edgerton and on the following Saturday Nov. 17th they will encounter their most hated rival, both of which latter games will be played on the home field and will be viewed by a good sized crowd from each of the schools. While both Edgerton and Beloit are strong and experienced teams, the latter was a better team. The line played a good game, at least as good as could be expected from a bunch of inexperienced players. In fact they played exceptionally well for the amount of training they have had. However the backfield did not play as good as they might have if they had used their head more and the body less as the other team was quick for them and the only way to beat them was by strategy. Monroe passed Janesville goal line six times and kicked for goals while the locals were unable to cross or even score once, making the score 40 to 0 in favor of the de-

The game Saturday was played at Monroe, the team going by rail, left here around noon and returned before supper. A rabid New York baseball fan paid $15 for the ball that Benny Kauff first laid off for a homer. The fan who caught the ball sat somewhere behind the first fan who had grabbed the ball and the latter was so eager to own the ball that he went down into his jeans and paid the fifteen cents.

Prospects of professional hockey in Canada this winter are reported to be few owing of course to the war. Canada will miss its national pastime, but Quebec is unable to organize a winter team this season. It looks as though the National Hockey association would have to close up for the duration of the war. There had been plans for a four-club league, but with Quebec out the chances are few.

Women of New York are trying to organize a golf club for women only. This is not to be further from masculine curses as might appear at first glance, but mostly because the golf clubs generally confine women's play to the first of the week and give the links over to the men on Saturdays and Sundays.

Honolulu has organized a major league circuit composed of three teams—Japanese, Chinese and Pirates. A mercantile league may be formed to play preliminary games.

leaders of their home grounds. If the team goes at their practice with a will they may be able to turn out a team that will surprise the natives and possibly defeat or hold their three next opponents. If the student body supports this is possible.

NORTHWESTERN TAKES GAME FROM BELLOIT HIGH SCHOOL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Beloit, Wis., Oct. 29.—Northwestern Military Academy of Lake Geneva gave Beloit high school a drubbing at Lake Geneva, Saturday, when they scored twenty-one points while Beloit was belatedly presented with a goose-egg. Beloit at no time was able to stop the advance of the heavy soldier team.

Next Saturday, here, the biggest home game of the year will be staged when Madison High and Beloit clash on the college field. On November 10, Janesville and Beloit meet at Janesville.

BELOIT WINS LAST GAME OF THE SEASON FROM KNOX

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Beloit, Wis., Oct. 29.—Beloit college closed the shortest football season in her history here Saturday afternoon when she handed Northwestern college at Naperville a 10 to 0 defeat. A touchdown and drop-kick gave Beloit her points while a touchdown and safety for Northwestern counted her nine. Because of freshmen being eligible for only four games, the schedule was curtailed. Basketball practice will start this week.

MORRIS MILLER

It appears that Bennie Leonard is not a lieutenant in the army nor is he in any real sense in the army at all. The pictures published of Leonard in uniform have been regarded on many sides as proof that the lightweight champion had been given a commission and would abandon all his boxing for the duration of the war. But the suit he wore was merely the unofficial uniform given newspaper correspondents or any other civilians who are associated with the army, but not in Leonard's salary as a boxing instructor is the same as a lieutenant's but beyond that there is no resemblance. Leonard and his manager are to be blamed for permitting the impression to be put forth that he had enlisted if they did not actually spread it. Leonard's statement at the time he won the lightweight crown, that he was going to join the army immediately, cost him his title and water ever since. Now that he has made a half-hearted stall to join he will come in for more sneers than ever before.

The National league is said to be greatly humiliated over the Giants' failure to win the big series, the chief worry being that it has been a costly flop for all time. It certainly were way out in front of any other talent in the older league and the White Sox were able to win their pennant only after some warm ups by the American league. World's more the American league has won by far the biggest percentage of the world's series in the past. However a short series doesn't always prove everything and it is likely to be some time before the American league is so far ahead of the National that it will disdain to meet the older league in a big contest.

Australia is subscribing a fund to build a monument in commemoration of the boxers who have lost their lives in the war. The project is being forwarded by the various boxing clubs throughout the country.

The Carlisle Indians are scheduled to play both the Army and Navy football teams this season. It's the time of the biggest professional football that the Indians have met the soldiers or sailors.

A rabid New York baseball fan paid $15 for the ball that Benny Kauff first laid off for a homer. The fan who caught the ball sat somewhere behind the first fan who had grabbed the ball and the latter was so eager to own the ball that he went down into his jeans and paid the fifteen cents.

Prospects of professional hockey in Canada this winter are reported to be few owing of course to the war. Canada will miss its national pastime, but Quebec is unable to organize a winter team this season. It looks as though the National Hockey association would have to close up for the duration of the war. There had been plans for a four-club league, but with Quebec out the chances are few.

Honolulu has organized a major league circuit composed of three teams—Japanese, Chinese and Pirates. A mercantile league may be formed to play preliminary games.

VETS OF RING ARE CLEANING UP IN SHORT BOUTS ON THE COAST

Four-round bouts on the Pacific coast are proving popular with many vets of the fight game who find they can put up a good scrap in that limit and take in a neat sum for it. Willie Ritchie has been having a new lease on his fight life in this way and Jimmy Britt, the graybeard who has been out of the game so long, is sure he can do as good as ever.

Game Fishing

GOIN' AFTER MUSKY,

My Dear Buck:

So you're out for the big ones, the "tiger" of the waters, the great old rascal that makes 'em all sit up and doff the lid. You've bussed, trouted, and piked and panned a bit, now you feel like taking a whirl at the boss of the tribe, caused no doubt by the many tales that have been spun about this Villin of the weedbeds. No matter, old man, how harrowing the tale, the muskellunge is guilty of everything that has been said about him.

Where to Find Him.

His favorite haunt is in about 5 to 15 feet of water near the weeds, water lilies or grasses that grow in the water, or alongside of submerged rocks. He is a solitary fellow, don't make any friends, just lies around waiting for a piece of food to go swimming by, then he makes a lightninglike dash, snags his powerful jaws shut on his victim and swims back to his station and gorges the catch, ready in a minute to take another foray. He always strikes a fish or lure, whenever, and there is no special time when he is feeding, fact is he seems to be hungry all the time, but he is more active from eight to eleven in the morning and from four until dark. When the water is slightly roughened by the wind and breaking in small waves or an overcast day, is good musky weather, but he may surprise you and strike your lure while you are trolling into shore to make a landing for the noonday lunch.

The Best Time.

Musky fishing is very good in June, unless the season is extremely cold and backward, towards the tail end of July it slows up considerably, while August is the poorest month for the big chief. During "dog days," his teeth are in poor shape and you can hardly coax a strike out of him unless he feels so down in the mouth and mean that he strikes from pure cussedness. Like a snake shedding its skin and the deer its horns, the musky sheds its teeth in August, but nature packs in a new set by the first of September and the old boy is in a fine fighting humor for that month. By far the best musky fishing is to be had in September and October, when the chill night air seems to fill them with an extra supply of pep for the food hunt the next day. Even up into November is not too late for the big ones, but for downright good musky fishing it is hard to beat September and October. Troll and Cast.

In the past most of the boys have contented themselves with trolling for the musky, but the real sport of the game is to cast for them, using the same method as that of casting for bass. In trolling for musky a silk braided line of 20 to 30 pounds test is about right, while a six-strand Cut-throat line is preferred by some. For a trolling lure the spoon hook holds first place and is no doubt the best little all-around bait. Use a chubby, shiner, black sucker or pork rind with a spoon as an added attraction, and if this don't seem to make 'em curious, put a strip of red flannel about six inches long on the hooks and let that wiggle through the water a bit as an enticer. Some mighty fine ones have been caught with this rig. Most beginners load the line with a whopling big spoon, even up to No. 12 size. Keep her down, old man, to a No. 4 or No. 6 for the single spoon, and No. 3 or No. 4 for the tandem style. For a good stiff rod for the beginner make it a steel one, and the five footer will fill the bill for either casting or trolling for the musky. Of course if you are a double-dyed expert you can use your lighter rod and tackle, but unless one is an expert at handling the lighter tackle he had better stick to the slightly heavier stuff and feel more sure of the fish. A musky can sure make a fine outfit look like a junk shop if it's handled by an inexperienced fisherman. Troll in water about 8 to 12 feet deep, off the edges of the weedbeds and over the underwater weeds; also off the rock beds and points of land as well as quiet coves and bays. Keep your rod straight out behind the boat; if you hold it out over the side you put a strain on it that is unnecessary and had medicine for any rod.

In casting for the musky keep the boat about 50 feet off the casting waters, moving the boat as noiselessly as possible and casting in towards the shore or feeding grounds. An all white or white and red head artificial minnow, or spoon and pork rind, frog or minnow makes a good casting lure. From the strike the fight is fast and gamy and you sure must keep the slack out of the line or he'll do a flop out of the water and corkscrew back on your line, which means farewell to the musky.

Corks in Mucilage Bottles.

By spreading vaseline on the sides of the cork and inside of the bottle neck it will prevent corks from sticking in paste and mucilage bottles and overcome the trouble caused by breaking off when trying to take them out.

In a recent issue you stated that compression cocks could be opened so as to look at the flame. When I open mine there is a rush of gas from each one but I can see no flame. Does this show that the engine is not developing full power? Would adjusting the carburetor for a better mixture help matters to any extent? C. V. R.

Unless the flame is shaded so as to be visible it is not always visible. Some times opening throttle and speeding up engine will bring out the flame more strongly. Do not condemn the carburetor adjustment on the evidence of the flame alone. Try out engine by speeding up car rapidly on a level road to see if it picks up speed quickly and evenly without misfiring.

MOTORIST DEPARTMENT, THE GAZETTE.
Other things being equal, which is the better gasoline feed system, pressure or vacuum? Why is the gasoline system so little used now? Because there is no room under the front seat for the large amount of gasoline required. There seems to be little choice between air pressure and vacuum. Each has its advantages and defects. As each system is used on a large number of cars the defects do not seem to be serious.

I have a 1914 touring car. Last Saturday I went 68.3 miles on four and three-quarters gallons of gasoline, which amounts to about 4.4 to 4.5 miles on a gallon. This is about all I am getting at the present time. I have gotten 20 to 22 miles before, and cannot see or know where the trouble is. (1) Also when the engine is running there is a noise something like a hissing noise which I cannot locate. (2) How is the best way to gauge mileage on gasoline without measuring with the rule? (3) Also when my car is running on a road, the noise seems to be a rattling noise which I can't locate. Thanking you, I remain, Sir, S. S.

There may be something the matter with the rings or cylinders scored or other trouble, requiring a general overhauling. The noise may come from a joint of the exhaust pipe. Tighten up the bolts. It gas still escapes from them replace the gaskets. A good way to gauge mileage is to fill the tank, which holds ten gallons. Read mileage on speedometer. Run until tank is empty and again note speedometer reading. The number per gallon will be one-tenth the difference between the two readings. The grinding noise may be worn differential case or heavier grease or have differential overhauled.

I have a 1914 Ford and it misfires when the lights are on. It uses 12 candle power bulbs. Will I need a new magneto or new wires on the timer? Can I get a new magneto through the wire across the test? I use a Regulator switch. Does it keep back any current? I would like to know where I could get a better regulating timer and tubes.

R. T. H.

If you are sure the wires are in good condition and make proper contact the magneto must be the trouble. They are very cheap. It will pay to have new ones installed. We are not familiar with the Regulator switch. Connect the wires across the switch and try the lights. If they burn correctly the fault is in the switch. Look for the advertising in the West. Send me magazine for manufacturers of vulcanizing outfits. They will give you all the information necessary.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Oct. 29.—The Edgerton high school football team met defeat at the hands of the Port Aransas team, 27 to 0. The game was played at Port Aransas, Texas, on Saturday. The score was 27 to 0. The first half of the game was closely contested, but Edgerton failed to come back in the second period and the Port team scored three touchdowns in the last half. Long end runs were made by the Port team, which made most of their gains. Edgerton had the ball on the Port's two yard line in the first quarter, but lost the ball on a fumble. That the Edgerton high school football team has been terribly crippled by the loss of the boys who are with the local platoon at Camp MacArthur, Texas, is in evidence by the scores of the games of the past two weeks.

The time for receiving subscriptions for the second Liberty loan has been fixed by the government to October 31. The quota allotted to Edgerton, $140,000, has not been reached. In all $97,800 had been received at the banks Saturday night. More applications for the loan were received during the day, which will materially add to this amount. Several large subscriptions will be made, however, which it is hoped, will bring the sum up to the full quota. The committees in charge of the bonds sales in this vicinity are in the field and a vigorous campaign will be continued to exceed our quota.

Miss Lucile Verbeck spent the week end at her parent home at Lodi.

I can gear with sprockets and chain of the rear of the camshaft but don't know where to obtain sprocket for camshaft. I have a six-tooth sprocket. Does magneto run at camshaft speed. Does magneto run at crankshaft speed (double that of camshaft). Get a sprocket twice the size of the one on magneto from any dealer in gears. Consult your mechanic.

I have a Harley Davidson motorcycle which has been painted over the name. I have enough transfers with the name on it and at a loss to know whether to use water or some other liquid to transfer name to machine. An answer from you would be greatly appreciated by me. W. W.

Transfer labels usually have enough adhesive material in them so they need not require water to prepare them for use. Have the surface perfectly clean and cover with some clean varnish after the transfer is thoroughly rubbed on.

A cotter pin in the clutch finger on my 1917 Ford broke and lodged in the finger. I tried to pull it out with a screwdriver but it lodged against the magneto point. I did not have the necessary tools with me to reach it. Will it cause trouble at all place except magneto point? I removed transmission cover but was unable to find it. It might get into the oil pipe and clog that. The chance is very remote, however. Remove drain plug at bottom of oil pan and run engine a few minutes and the pin will probably drop out.

I have an E. M. C. 30 which runs O. K. except a noise which seems to come from the differential. When car is running in first or second or when climbing a hill it is not noticeable, but when running on level roads it will go swish-swish-swish. Sometimes it will climb a hill and get O. K., then will begin again. Do you think the differential ring gear or drive pinion is worn or weak? Thanking you for your advice, I remain, Sir, C. F. Mc.

We are inclined to think that the trouble is not in any part of the mechanism but that would give a metallic sound. It would seem to be something dragging in a wheel or something of the kind. The noise is not noticeable only careful inspection can determine that.

MOTORIST DEPARTMENT, THE GAZETTE.
Will you please answer these questions? I have a 1902 car. It had a one-cylinder engine in it. The boy who was with me when I bought it, said it was a four-cylinder. I have a 1902 car. I now have an opposed engine in it, the bore is three and three-quarters inches. I would like to know if this two-cylinder engine will run the auto as well as the one cylinder. The motor is air-cooled, the flywheel has a large fan, and the motor is very quiet. The gear ratio is the same as when the other engine was in the auto. E. L. chain drive. R. K. M.

The two-cylinder motor if in proper condition should develop considerably more power than single cylinder. If it does not the compression is weak. Check the bearings too tight or cut of time, or it may need lubrication. If it cracks over readily, the compression is not lost through friction. Warm up the motor and test the compression. If compression is lost on heating up, the valve is not seating or the valve lifters the ends of the valve stems should be filed. The space between them when the engine is cold should be .004 to .004 inch. Remember to test compression while engine is hot, but to adjust valve lifters while engine is cold.

I have a 1916 model Maxwell with which I have had a little trouble in starting. When I want to start on the self-starter it will not respond easily as it should. I have recently had the starting system looked over and it only worked for a while. If I crank the motor it will start. I have a battery of battery should be connected to frame.

ALARMING SLUMP NOTED IN GERMAN BIRTH RATE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, Oct. 29.—An alarming slump in the birth rate in Germany is checking the population by more than 700,000 souls a year.

Figures published by a German weekly show that the births in the decreased more than 40 per cent in 1916.

This decreased added to the huge mortality of the war will probably put the actual decrease above 1,500,000 in the last year.
